Salient Features of Research: My doctoral research examined how higher education students in Bangalore and surrounding rural areas become aware of their leadership qualities and how effectively they demonstrate trait emotional intelligence. The study compares NCC Cadets who have undergone phased military training with those who have not. It is a pioneering attempt in the area of developing student leadership among higher education students. The findings indicate a statistically significant relationship between trait emotional intelligence and leadership qualities, with a notable statistical difference between the predictor and outcome variables. Topic—"Trait Emotional Intelligence and Leadership Qualities: A Comparative Study of NCC Trained and Non-NCC Students".
